Editor's Letter

Respected Readers,

Season's Greetings !!!

It gives us immense pleasure to launch the first sector-specific Magazine on Relocation Industry by Team Publicity Mantra. This publication is possible only because of the hardworking team of contributors and direction of our Chairman Mr. Ajit Sharma, not the least Mrs. Sunita Sharma (Wife of Chairman) who conceptualized the name of the magazine "Reflection".

It is rightly said, "When Team works...Dreams work".

The relocation sector is a large sector of the Indian economy and it would continue to grow in tandem with the economy. It follows that to support the development of an effective moving industry it requires the establishment of an effective and efficient management and regulation system.

The Indian government pushed to introduce reforms to support and grow the sector; and an increasing share of organized market players.

I am highly grateful for the untiring efforts of my colleagues of Publicity Mantra, Ms. Pooja Sah, and Mr. Rupesh, well-supported contributors.

This Team has covered all crucial aspects impacting the Relocation Sector and has given us a holistic view in a crisp manner.

Wishing everyone Happy Learning and a Healthy Life !!!

Founder's Message

We at "MFI" believe in enjoying life & millions will be enjoying our services every day. We strive to make sure every experience with moving is positive. We're committed to improving the relocation industry and are a part of and are playing a positive role with-in it. Sustainability isn't just related to our business, it is our business. Building a better world is a task that can only be achieved when we work together, even when we're at a distance. We're building a federation to last – relocate people and build brands that will continue to bring people together for next 100 years and beyond. We are committed to working with our members towards a more sustainable future in the relocation Industry.

This is our family business. I saw my father doing all these from my school days. I was always curious about it and started my journey in the relocation industry at the age of 16 in 1993. I started exploring across the country and then established myself in Kolkata - 1995, then Chennai - 1998, Hyderabad - 1999 and later Silicon Valley Bangalore, in 1999. Till 2004 I worked with my father in the company that he established and later I left due to my different outlook & the need to do something more for our industry.

I started to learn about basic things in that area so that I could help the relocation industry. In my journey I met some people who supported me and many who criticized me, but that never stopped me from moving towards my goal. Since the technology was not evolved it was difficult for me to spread my vision and ideology and those who used to hear about it thought of it as something that was impossible to achieve. Later, when there was a boost in technology after 2010 and 2011 in India, I started to set my plans in motion. I reconnected with some old friends and also made new acquaintances so that they could help me with my goals. By 2017, all my dreams and plans for the relocation industry started to shape into reality when I created MFI. My goal was not to print cash but to help others in this industry and make them aware about this industry.

Big thanks to the people who criticized me. I took it as a challenge to prove them wrong and I hope I succeeded in it. I would also give my hearty thanks to the people who stood by me and believed in me.

#lets grow together.

INTRODUCTION

THE CO-FOUNDERS

Jatin Gulati

Owner
Gulati Packers & Movers, Bareilly.

Stating about our business under the name of Gulati Packers and Movers , the normal practices involved in any relocation is the same and it was going on well in our organization too . At the later stage with the growing competition and mal-practices of Moving companies , shortage of Technological skills , Lack of origin & destination services , it was felt that a body shall be formed whereby an eye should be kept on the Moving practices , their trainings , time-to-time implementation of policies , change of methods of tackling the problems faced by the customers . So, with the association of 6 people, we thought of laying down the foundation of this Federation , Which is now known as Movers Federation Of India . After the formation of this body, our tasks related to origin and Destination services just got eliminated and our Management is now more focused on Enhancing sales and generating revenue. Just not only this, the quality of work style and culture in our organization , the way of taking business ahead also got changed . Highly recommended Group of Removals in India . Best wishes to all. God Bless !

I started working as a Labor in a Packers Movers Company out of a poor family in Bangalore. Since 2005, while working as a Labor, I used to see that the customer in this relocation industry was so upset because their belongings were broken, delay in arriving and what not. Whenever I had to go on unloading and packing at the customer's place, 90% of them had the same problem. Three years have passed, and then I decided to have my own business with only one motto that is customer satisfaction. In 2008, I started my company names Excellent Movers & Packers in Hyderabad with my friend Mahapal Jangid. Slowly years passed, in 2012 my business partner got a government job as a teacher in Rajasthan, his 4 years of support were critical for me. In 2017, I met Ajit Sharma Ji and with him, we formed an organization named MFI, to which we added members, and its conference was held in Bangalore in the year 2018 when we did not have many members, yet today we are touching many milestones. After Joining MFI, I feel like having my business branch in every city. MFI is a face of customer satisfaction and for making my principle come true, I want to thank Mr. Ajit Sharma Ji and all CO FOUNDER S and all the members who join this organization and giving support with all their minds and wealth.

MOVING SERVICES

I joined the moving industry in 2002 after completing MBA- Marketing from Indore - MP. That was the era when the Indian economy was booming. Several multinational companies both manufacturing as well as service providers were investing in India. I worked with many moving companies in different parts of the country and then in March 2007 started Relocare in Pune. Relocare has the most comprehensive and diversified relocation services. Relocare has relocated a number of customers worldwide and offers fast and reliable relocation services. We provide relocation services to destinations worldwide. We are well known in the Relocation industry for our excellent services and Customer Support. Our quality packing system, experience & highly skilled packing crew members ensures that all your belongings reach the destination in a "picture perfect" condition. I joined MFI in 2017 keeping in mind that this is the right time to put all moving companies on one platform for the betterment of the industry. My best wishes to MFI and all affiliated members who are constantly working hard to make this industry a better place and to optimize the customer experience, keeping at par with the international standards.

It all began in 2008 with a small office in Kolkata and today we take pride in offering our unmatched relocation & storage services Pan India from our multiple offices. We always go that extra mile to ensure stress free move and everything is taken care of. And to add up, we now have our own fleet of 20 ft containerized vehicles to ensure your personal belongings reach safely on time. With a team of professionals, we have successfully relocated 15000 families till date. To reach out at every corner of the country, we got associated to "Movers Federation of India" (MFI) in 2017-18. This association not just brings comfort in what we do but also builds trust in our customers minds. With a network of over 100+ affiliates in over 350+ cities providing quality driven services. In the coming years, we would want to establish ourselves as a preferred partner for major corporates providing a single stop solution for all their mobility and storage needs.

WE ARE MFI

MFI stands for Movers Federation Of India formed in 2018 with 20 members. Over the years, MFI has emerged as the voice of the Indian Relocation Industry.

Movers Federation of India was formed to benefit the end-user. The members of MFI have witnessed a lot of fraud activities over these past years. After listening to numerous stories of these sorts, they really wanted to give the end-user a positive experience. Hence, they came up with the idea of setting up a Federation that will benefit the industry at large.

With the increasing number of frauds and scams in the packers and movers industry, people are afraid to avail the services of moving companies. The news of moving trucks running away with household belongings of people hitting the headlines now and then took away the faith of people in companies engaged in a similar business. Unethical practices by some movers have led to a loss of faith in all moving companies on the part of many consumers.

Without any proper body to govern the moving industry, scams are on a rise in the relocation industry. MFI is infiltrating the moving industry like never before. With our united voice, we are protecting the interests of moving companies by maintaining industry standards, assisting consumers, fostering innovation, lobbying national and regional government authorities.

Members of the MFI work towards their common goal of encouraging high standards of ethical conduct within the Association and across the industry and promise to follow a guide to professional conduct. ■

An Industry Overview

Moving from one place to another is one of the most complicated and stressful tasks for any individual and family. And because of the fast-running life in urban cities, the pain only gets doubled every time a move is on the board. To make moving hassle-free and less stressful, people need moving companies.

Moving and packing have never been an industry that is bound by specifics, it is a space where new and valuable services are constantly added from time to time. In fact, packers and movers are not merely confined to packing and shifting, but also are actively involved in building relationships with the clients that they serve. When an individual, family or a company moves from one city to another, they need guidance and help with the move. This is where the packers come in. The other important aspect of packers is to be ready to carry out the job as soon as clients call upon them. The services and policies of individual countries are constantly on the change with their desire to invest in the global economy.

Businesses are increasingly focusing on global growth and mobility necessities to enhance the culture of this industry, making it more reliable and durable for the increasing demand for professional moving services. Delivering cutting-edge performances while ensuring 100 % customer satisfaction is something that the industry is focusing on at the moment while mapping quality in every relocation movement.

The relocation industry has eventually gained fair momentum in the last couple of years. The market presence of relocation firms is gradually rising, which itself shows the growing demand of the industry and its bright future in the upcoming few years.

The massive advancement in technology and innovation has benefitted many businesses in India and across the globe. It is the same for the relocation industry. It has powered the relocation industry with tools that offer low-cost pricing and real-time solutions to customers. This wasn't the case a few decades ago. Shifting to a new house or transporting goods from one city to another was a daunting task, involving heavy manpower. But technology has improved it and made it organized, convenient and transparent. The changing environment has always been challenging for the industry, given by the pressures of consumer's choices and preferences when planning for the upcoming relocation movement. Growth in emerging markets has been both a threat and an opportunity for the Indian relocation industry. A clear understanding of the market trend definitely helps one with strategic financial investors, individual relocation expert teams, and customers to tackle the current challenges around packing and moving practices and the unorganized nature of the industry. Hence, the success within the relocation industry lies completely in the quality of packing, moving, delivery, tracking, efficiency, and innovation to overcome the strict competition and set oneself apart. The government does not have any rules and regulations for startup companies. As a result, people with some resources start off moving companies, and they have multiplied in the country. Company growth cannot take place if there are no clear-cut principles.

At present, the industry is facing many impediments; its highly unorganized state is one of the major ones, as of now, which is hindering growth. With this, there is a stereotyped notion about many movers and packers across India. Many companies are still handling their operations through a poorly trained workforce and using mini tricks loaded with riskily-tied household items, which are more concerned about reaching the right destination on time and safely moving the cargos to the right place. ■

The Role of Regulators

With more than 200 million moves occurring every year, according to the Department of Economic and Social Affairs, it's a wonder most of them go smoothly. Fortunately, the majority of moves are made without incident but the number of complaints against moving companies has increased steadily over the past decade. Hiring a moving company is a big decision that involves more than money. You're trusting that company to get your possessions from here to there on time, without damage, and at the agreed-upon price. All too often, that doesn't happen, especially for long-distance, interstate moves.

they've got your goods loaded onto the truck, they double or triple the price, and they won't deliver your goods unless you pay extra. The moving industry is plagued by scammers who take advantage of people who are in a rush and don't know how to find a reputable mover. The thugs advertise heavily on the Internet to get prime placement on search results. According to industry analysts, items worth Rs 8,000-10,000 crore are either not delivered or advantage of this. The loss is borne by innocent people, who hand over their valuable items to movers & packers with the hope that they would get them in time and good condition. The fraudsters create professional-looking websites that boast about their professional staff and years of experience, along with fake reviews, and in many cases, a federal license number. Displaying a license number does not mean that the mover is honest. In many cases, that license has been revoked. Because moving scams are so lucrative, trickster companies have created sophisticated operations that pretend to be legitimate businesses. They claim to have an office in your area, but these are typically virtual offices or mail-handling services. They also tend to change names frequently, which makes it difficult for consumers to get reliable information about them.

“ There are so many out there with the name Agrawal and I too was cheated with the same reason. If Ajit from MFI would have not helped I would not have been able to get my goods delivered . He is really a great guy , very helpful . I would ever be grateful to him . Whenever anyone is using packer and movers please do with MFI making sure things are fine ”

MOVING INDUSTRY AFT

PANDEMIC

Coronavirus has uncluttered the globe very quickly, risking lives, overturning organizations, and setting off an overall monetary droop. The short-and long haul impacts are still to be found as numerous organizations plan for the post-lockdown stage. A certain something, in any case, is clear: we need to prepare ourselves for a changed reality.

Every industry has needed to change how they work together, and the moving business is the same. Each business associated with relocation needed to adjust, regardless of whether it be through monetary assistance or through additional wellbeing measures to keep staff and customers solid without forfeiting quality help.

Long haul COVID-19 had put the moving business to an extra and remarkable test by restricting actual contact among individuals and requiring legitimate hardware for sterilization and security. Organizations that need to remain in business during these occasions should follow the means of precautionary measures so both the movers and clients can remain protected and solid.

Sanitizing all the gear and trucks ordinarily costs time and cash, and many can't manage the cost of it. Additionally, numerous individuals are deferring their moves since they would prefer not to take any chance, which is totally reasonable and influences the benefit of the business. The individuals who conclude that they actually need to move, anticipate that the movers should appear with veils and gloves. Tragically, a few clients have the insight into managing movers who don't follow the methodology endorsed by important specialists. What the next normal in the relocation industry could look like that will define the competitive and technological landscape?

In the new normal, safety & health is the primary concern. Prior while planning a move, the primary focus was cost & convenience, but now it has changed to safety and health.

Subsequently, transport options that guarantee physical distancing will win out over others. Moving companies have additionally done changes that limit the quantity of contact between movers and customers. Earlier, movers would visit home early to see how much work was needed and provide an estimate.

ER THE

These gatherings would regularly end in a handshake. Presently, movers can essentially decide cities. The customer will address the mover through a video call, and afterward, walk them around the home to give them a feeling of the work to be finished. Any paperwork can also be signed virtually so that there is no need to touch paper or pens that might be contaminated.

People are adhered to maintain a good distance. The act of staying away from others is yet being followed. Moving companies are asking the clients not to participate in the move, and maintain a good distance while they are packing the belongings.

"MFI is only an organization whose members work for the betterment of the Packers And Movers industry. We work in this organization in a technical, modern, and scientific way to provide safe and better service to the customers at a lower cost. Our goal is to protect customers from the unprofessional movers. Overall MFI is a guarantee of certainty even in this time of uncertainty."

- Sunil Sharma
(Care Home Relocation)
MFI Chandigarh

The fewer people that are in the home at one time, the easier it will be to keep up physical distancing to keep everyone safe. For movers to stay 6 feet apart, since they may have to drive in the same truck can be a tough job.

Over the past few months, many people have canceled or rescheduled moves, causing major damage to moving companies around the country. The moving industry is made up of more than just moving companies. It involves suppliers, storage companies, designers, and more, and pulls in a lot of revenue, but it could still lose billions of dollars. That means that the industry has had to pivot and change priorities on the go while the pandemic is wreaking havoc on the economy.

"I joined MFI in 2018 as a member, and only able to see the worth of being an MFI member, when all the other businesses are closing down due to the pandemic. Thanks to MFI, not only my business has seen growth, I have also made the turnover of Rs 30 lakh during the lockdown period. MFI is the blessing for our industry."

-Akhilesh Tiwari
(Sundaram Logistics Packers And Movers)
MFI Haridwar

The pandemic has taught us to be creative and stretch our limits in many innovative ways. It's time to adapt to the change as we go in a new direction for a better beginning.

The pandemic has compelled industry players to concentrate on their day-to-day businesses: closing operations, keeping workers safe and healthy, managing moving channel disruptions, and ramping up production and services once again. Trucks must be sanitized regularly, both before loading and after unloading. Even though the virus will probably have died off by the time the load gets to its faraway destination, it is still better safe than sorry. Workers wear masks and gloves, no matter what. ■

You could be moving because of your work or driving your business to a more profitable place. In both cases, an ample amount of work is required. The dread of preparing arrangements like transportation, packing, and intellectually getting ready yourself and your family for coming changes can end up being both mentally and physically exhausting. Besides, the Coronavirus outbreak has added pressure with nations setting travel limitations.

Packers and movers play a critical role during the relocation process. Of course, the shifting of goods is not an easy job. It is a time-consuming process as it needs extra effort to move goods effectively and successfully. Therefore, people choose packers and movers to reduce their stress and save time.

Furthermore, there are many barriers in the relocation industry. The competition on the moving market is fierce, so some companies, unfortunately, resort to methods that do good for their bottom lines but not for their clients. Some recurring problems can be fixed, but some are just issues of doing business with people and companies that only want to take your money without respecting their part of the deal.

The maddening thing for people who relocate with moving companies is that they have little or no control over their move. The overall cost is not fixed, trucks can break down, drivers might not show up when they said they would, and sales agents often aren't very helpful because they aren't the ones handling your items. Some businesses don't bother with giving their customers the treatment they deserve. Once the move is paid for, many things can go wrong.

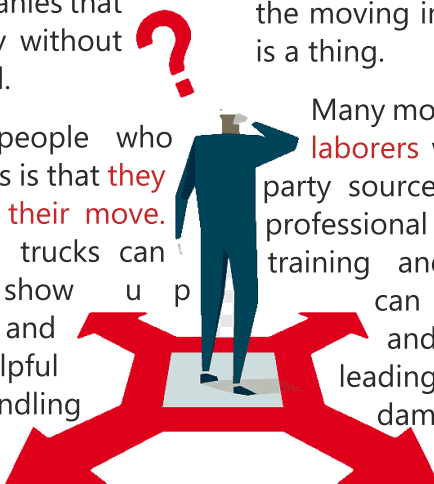

CHALLENGE

IN THE MOVING

Some relocation companies tend to keep their client's shipments until they receive the desired amount of money. This is called a hostage situation because you're being blackmailed into giving more money than you should, just to get your things back. This practice isn't too visible in the moving industry stats and trends, but it still is a thing.

Many moving companies will hire temporary laborers who are not trained from a third-party source or even off the street. Being a professional mover is a skill, one that needs training and development. These "temps" can be a liability to both the loading and unloading portion of the move leading to poor quality and much higher damages. Clients have to face damages due to an unskilled workforce. The worse scenario is they may have the chance of having a criminal background with no previous contact with the moving industry.

CHALLENGES IN THE MOVING INDUSTRY

They only want to earn easy money, and leave. You can sometimes recognize them by not having working clothes from the company you hired. You do not want them in your home.

Damaging of goods is very common while moving, and it's one of the challenges faced by moving companies. Whether it's the movers' fault or something wasn't properly packed by the customer, some breakable items might end up damaged at the end of the moving process. This is a common occurrence, even among professionals. Long-distance moves are more prone to such outcomes given the travel time and distance, but it can also happen with local relocations. It doesn't matter whether you decided to pack your own glassware and other breakables

"I have joined MFI for my better future. I did not join to earn MFI for crores but joined to serve the industry. MFI is the only organization whose members work for the betterment of the Packers & Movers industry. We work in this organization in a technical, modern, and scientific way to provide services that are held to high standards.

Our goal is also to protect society from the people of this industry who want to profit by unethical or illegal means.

-Manbir Sharma
(Shivam International Packers & Movers)

or you want to pay movers to take care of that part - damage to a certain extent is always possible.

The biggest challenge in the relocation industry is the communication breakdown, according to the stats, 53% of the customers reported a bad move because of a lack of communication between the driver or the coordinator. So the moving companies need to give updates about their location to the client or share their location so that the clients can track the transit.

"Let's grow together. Sab ka sath sab ka vikas" I look at The MFI as a platform, where I/My team can work with peace of mind In terms of execution of works and Monetary matters. I believe, as far as works/Projects are concerned, let it be "Survival of the fittest". Works will be awarded to the best Packers with Best Rates. Of course, the first preference should be given to the group members Only.

- Jeet Shah & Dipti Shah
(Ace Relocations) MFI Ahmedabad

Another challenge that certain moving companies fall back to is a lack of transparency. Some moving companies offer non-binding agreements and unreliable methods of generating quotes. That way, the customer can't be sure about how much they have to pay for the requested service and can be left with additional costs or fees that they didn't see coming.

Signing a non-binding agreement is always a risk because you're not bound for any amount of money. ■

" Today people from all kind of backgrounds seek services from trusted packers and movers. This industry has been suffering from a credibility crisis also . Stories of fake packers fled with consumer goods splash across newspapers every other day . Mushrooming of packers in dingy lanes in every city without any government registration pose a serious threat to genuine packers integrity ."

Pawan Jindal

Travel Journalist , Delhi

The relocation and moving industry provides employment to crores of people in the country and generate big revenue volumes for the governments too It is one of the most complex and diverse industries People are constantly moving from one place to the other due to professional reasons , business or lifestyle choices

Most individuals today are on the move and shift base more often than usual

Moving and packing industry of India is a 5 billion dollars industry and growing very fast

Today people from all kind of backgrounds seek services from trusted packers and movers This industry has been suffering from a credibility crisis also Stories of fake packers fled with consumer goods splash across newspapers every other day Mushrooming of packers in dingy lanes in every city without any government registration pose a serious threat to genuine packers integrity

These things hinder the growth of the industry MFI has to work to make this industry more organised and transparent

Industry must focus on transparency in prices and there should not be any hidden charges Real-time tracking facilities to customers for their goods is another thing industry must work upon MFI team must keeps themselves aware of the changing dynamics and trends of India's relocation industry Today's customers spend more time online, they're likely to compare a couple of offers Industry has to understand versatile needs of today's clients You have to address their requirements and have to offer hassle-free moving experience MFI must present relocation, logistical and enterprise solutions for the industry and it's members You have to offer your clients a fully technology driven approach and competitive pricing model Industry should embrace technology to offer transparent, low-cost and real-time solutions to it's clients

The MFI team has to train it's members well to provide better and personalised customer experiences

I wish whole MFI team my best wishes . . .

THE TECH SHIFT IN THE RELOCATION INDUSTRY

Shifting homes from one place to another is a laborious task, and we all can agree with this, the relocation industry seems to be trapped in various new challenges faced during the shifting process. Technology is the key factor today through which companies offer a better shifting experience to their customers. Technology is making the shifting process more advanced and stress-free.

At present people prefer to live in giant homes with plenty of household articles, when they plan to shift they become anxious and quite impatient. Especially with long-distance moves, clients face different issues in every different shifting process that are strenuous and time-consuming. Developing technology is playing a major part and lifts some weight on the shoulders of packers and movers. The advancement in technology enables a packing and moving company to make their services more effective and reliable.

One of the most highlighted technical advancements would be the presence of tracking devices. Earlier, people used to get worried about their belongings if any sudden unfortunate event disrupted their shifting process.

Most of the time, it was a lack of communication, technical issues, or any other mechanical issue in the moving vehicle which made the process slow. GPS tracking, allowing customers to relax while their shifting process is a work in progress. Customers can do live tracking of their household items/shipments from anywhere. GPS services are more beneficial for long-distance transportation of goods. Such services enormously add value to the industry's offerings, build trust among customers, and develop better reliability in the long term.

The presence of payments and deals on video calls replaced digital based has paperwork.

People can now receive the inventory of their items and contract in their mail which avoids the chance of misplacing any important document or bill. Rather than paying through cash, payment is made via net banking, mobile wallet, or card which is easy to process and saves time. In transportation and logistics, technology is delivering highly integrated and efficient transportation and warehouse management solutions. Installed sensors in transport vehicles will continuously capture, share and process data in real-time.

WhatsApp has been a powerful tool for business growth. At present everyone is using WhatsApp to communicate.

And therefore this has certainly benefited businesses as it gives ease in making a conversation with the customers. Whether to send the quotation or asking for feedback. The client can easily connect to the moving companies and get instant solutions.

Technology is affecting every industry today to match the constantly changing market trends. People rely on websites rather than visiting offices to choose the best service provider, bills are paid via phones, the presence of chatbots and AI offers customer support service 24/7. The relocation industry has seen improvement in their work management, client interaction, and accounts department after accepting technological aspects in their services. There is no doubt that more transformation will take place in the upcoming days to reshape the industry and uplift its standards.

"To successfully target and work with millennial customers (and all customers at all), professional movers & packers should seriously consider the idea of hiring younger people and empowering them to look for creative solutions." - Anoop Mishra

Millennials have grown up with digital devices. To reach that group, moving companies need to adopt technology that enables the millennial customers to opt for what kind of service they want and give them more control over each step of their moving process. ■

IS RELOCATION INDUSTRY GENERATING EMPLOYMENT

Employment generation in India has been on a low-key to average growth as seen over the last two years despite a stable and growing economy. The conversion of unorganized labor into the organized sector has been a key driver in the employment numbers growing over the last 5 years. The gig economy is here to stay and has been largely favored by the millennial workforce.

Within a short span of 50 years since independence, the contribution of the service sector in India to the country's GDP is a lion's share of over 60%. However, it still employs only 25% of the labor force.

The relocation industry provides a transitional opportunity to the labor force. Also, the industry has a multiplier effect for job creation as it is highly in need of laborers moving from low-skilled to more value-added jobs.

As the Indian relocation industry is now adopting digital technologies and harnessing its potential, clearly evident from the digitalization of export and import transactions and popular use documentation are replaced by new modes like E-way bills, the traditional word-of-mouth promotion and marketing is now supported by digital marketing and is catering to the varied demands through systematic sales and operations planning and others. The relocation industry is slowly getting digitized spearheading the emergence of new jobs and transformation of the traditional ones.

Every business today requires well-trained and qualified professionals who can manage their inventory and warehouses, keep track of accounts, and handle the customs and regulatory compliance and other processes depending on the skills availability. The professionals in this sphere continually strive to ensure that goods and services are delivered to consumers on time and in the proper condition under minimum costs to achieve high levels of customer satisfaction. The focus is on providing the best service to customers and increases the supply of goods in the market. For this, the market players require a large number of trained manpower.

Looking at the current employment status, over a lakh of incremental jobs are expected in warehousing alone whereas around four lakhs in packaging and transportation for the next four years.

The job roles such as consignment booking assistant, e-documentation assistant, courier delivery executive, warehouse packer, inventory clerk, logistics and distribution manager, supply chain analyst,... Next page.

supply chain coordinator, supply chain manager are born out of the need to stay attuned to the evolving industry scenario and tech adoption on a large scale. As integrated relocation is the new trend, talents working in the sector cater high compensation packages that vary from skills, experience, and knowledge. To retain them and encourage adding value and innovation in the business, companies also ensure stress-free working conditions and complete safety to achieve higher employee productivity and efficiency.

Interestingly, the number of women employees in the relocation industry is also increasing at a rapid rate as the statistics account for 21%, rising from 5% recorded a decade ago. The moving companies are embracing and encouraging gender diversity, providing women with equal career opportunities. And, therefore women are taking up the charge of responsibilities in other promising spheres of the industry. ■

Women's Day Special

ON THE RISE

Women Are Changing the Relocation Industry

"Women are overcoming and evolving from the so-called web of stereotypes and flying towards the expanse of the vast relocation industry."

Think of a mover? What does this mover look like? Before you start describing a big, strong man with muscles, hold up... How many of you pictured a woman? Maybe a few, if any. However, this image might not be as accurate as you'd think.

Let's throw out the stereotypical image of movers you might have next time you're planning a move. Women and relocation are closely connected. Women have a genetic configuration that makes them perfect hosts and planners.

Haven't we all seen this in our households-small or big - the woman ensuring her home is all set and well decorated, neat, and in order?

Usually, it always used to be our Mom or sisters planning the move, ensuring the details of packing, all things needed, etc are all checked. Women evolving in the relocation industry are a natural result of who we are!!

Let's face it, the moving industry hasn't always been welcoming to women. It's time to change that. At MFI, we take a different approach. We aim to empower women in moving as well as offer great moving services.

"Women are overcoming and evolving from the so-called web of stereotypes and flying towards the expanse of the vast relocation industry."

Throughout history, the world has witnessed many great women of strength who managed to tap into their Everyday Power to leave an indelible mark on society. Today more than ever, women are taking their place in traditionally male-dominated fields like construction and transportation. And the numbers prove it – women compose almost 50% of the workforce in logistics! So when you think "mover," don't just think "man."

"Ask yourself! If women can be soldiers, police officers, and even firefighters, why not movers?"

“When one thinks of logistics or the relocation sector, the first image that pops into their mind is that of a truck driver or a labourer carrying heavy loads and the second image is “packers & movers”. Somehow the relocation business has been associated with the term ‘Packers & Movers’ whereas it is bigger than that. I am here to break this proverbial glass ceiling that has limited one’s mind-set. Having worked in this industry, I have come to a realisation that making a mark here is challenging as this industry is vast and has a global reach. Luckily for me, I have been provided with first-hand knowledge in this area as my family has always been a part of this sector. My father Mr Anil Sharma is always there to guide me through the roughs and toughs that I encounter in this field of work. My basic aim is to use this platform to change the “packers & movers” perception that is linked to the relocation segment of the logistical industry.

in the world. It can negatively affect our health, earnings, and career opportunities. It can even affect our everyday lives (like how women are underrepresented as movers in your imagination).

Women are known to have better intuition, patience, emotional focus, compassion and networking ability. The list of female strengths is endless.

Don't be misled by stereotypes

Movers come in all shapes and sizes, doesn't matter if you picture a man or a woman – it's not about physical strength, but the tireless effort they put in to make your moving process as easy and stress-free as possible.

Any move can be made casual and fun! Every day we see more and more successful women as business owners, managers, and yes - even movers.

From packers, coordinators, drivers to actual movers, women are now a part of this industry and might be coming to move your furniture next.

Embrace the phenomenal future of the relocation industry where women are a part of it, and do what the movers do - keep moving forward.

If you're a female moving professional, we invite you to become a part of our network.

We are dedicated to developing an ecosystem of support that allows you to thrive in the moving industry. ■

PETS ON THE WHEELS

“Every Pet has its day”

People are becoming more attached to their pets often regarded as part of the family. They became more aware of the hardships some animals suffer, motivating many animal lovers to adopt stray cats or dogs as pets in India. The concept of owning pets and taking care of them is a very urban phenomenon in India. The growth of the market, therefore, is largely dependent on the pace of urbanization; the infrastructure changes of the past two decades signal a very positive and rapid movement here. The initial impasse of the Indian consumer overspending on pets is slowly giving way to the feeling of pet humanization and sensitization, trends well demonstrated by the rapid rise in adoption rates.

Pets play an important role in the lives of many people throughout the world, and there is a growing body of research indicating a positive relationship between pet ownership and human health. Many economic experts believe that the pet industry is one of the most stable industries around. Studies have shown that even during times of economic trouble, people still tend to consider their pets to be a high priority, and they still often spend significant money on their animals. According to the stats, during the pandemic, Air India flew over 2000 domestic pets on its domestic flight, while many pets including turtles, hamsters, rabbits, exotic birds, and even fishes traveled by road in air-conditioned vehicles with a pet handler in tow on long-distance trips cutting across states.

Air India has been flying an average of four pets out of Mumbai daily.

Due to the pandemic, the number of pets' travel has been more than double. This gives the rise to pet relocation companies.

Now people see their animals as an extension of their families.

The Indian pet relocation industry has come a long way in terms of market value and customer service during the past decade. The awareness of pet relocation has increased in the past years there still a large population who remains ignorant of such a service.

Industry veterans believe this is just the beginning, and that the spurt in pet relocation and growing interest in pets, especially dogs, means the progress witnessed till now. Continuing its growth trend, the pet relocation industry is expected to continue to register strong double-digit retail value growth. ■

MFI IS THE ANSWER

Movers Federation of India (MFI) is an authorized body formed to manage and operate the relocation industry in India.

As the Indian economy grows, the volume of household goods either for business purposes or as relocation of home for individuals also continues to grow. This has resulted in a growing market for Packers and Movers in India.

However, an absence of a centralized governing board to ensure trust and accountability has resulted in fierce competition and unethical practices within the industry. Understanding and considering the repercussions of these scams in the packers and movers industry, the Movers Federation of India (MFI) decided to keep a check on the authenticity of the companies.

MFI has introduced a list of approved & verified moving companies. This is a certified team of professionals having extensive experience of working in the business for years. They have been audited and approved by the MFI under various aspects like reliability, team strength, insurance, security, and quality control before giving them the certificate. CONSUMER AND INDUSTRY EXPECTATIONS FROM THE GOVERNMENT

Each year millions of people in India move for personal reasons and career opportunities. It's a significant event in anyone's life. Your money, your memories are at stake. It can also be stressful, even under the best of circumstances..

Most moving companies are legitimate businesses that do quality work. But in recent years, a growing number of complaints have been filed against interstate movers-and many of those complaints are of the fraudulent practices of a small percentage of dishonest movers known as rogue movers.

There is no specific statutory enabling authority for the Consumer Frauds and Scams. The lack of specific authority has been a hindrance to the present development of the relocation industry.

The government and local law enforcement agencies have a major role to play in the protection of the consumer. There should be the best way to protect consumers from fraudulent practices in the moving industry, and also to make sure that the moving industry is not unfairly maligned.

The demand for relocation services is at its peak. And complaints against them are also rising. The consumer complaints in the forum have over 700 complaints against leading

"Before you book the services of any moving company, "Firstly make sure the company you choose is registered and insured and has verified consumer reviews and have a proper license before signing the contract and handing over your valuables. Packers & Movers, among others. Complaints range from damaged goods and delayed delivery to fraud and overcharging.

Several cases of theft and robbery have also been reported by the people where the drivers of the trucks have misappropriated their belongings while shifting their materials and have fled away.

INTERVIEW

'We will set up training centres for packers'

Movers Federation of India (MFI), an industry body formed three years ago to protect interests of moving companies and their consumers, will soon set up a training centre at Hyderabad. This will help its members adhere to industry standards, tells Rameeh Jangra, Co-Founder, MFI to B Krishna Mohan

Market

The packers and movers industry turnover is about Rs 1,500 crore and we are hoping to touch Rs 1,800 crore soon. We will focus on optimising resources and bringing a transparency into the system. We will recycle most of the packaging debris and avoid plastic as much as possible.

Opportunity

We move factory machinery, household items, automobiles and even pets. Mostly, we use containers to move these items. In areas, where movement of containers is difficult, we serve the customers in trucks. Bases on the needs, we may use tarpaulin for protection of goods.

The segment is not impacted by recession. Relocation will happen all the time. In one instance, a big company moved its factory to Manesar.

In this case, the land was sold and the machinery was shifted there. The company provided housing to the staff at the new location and this required us to shift all the household items.

centres at Bengaluru, Vishakhapatnam, Lucknow and Pune to train our members to hone their skills and deliver best services. We aim to create 5,000 direct and indirect employment. There will be need for trained packers, labour, loaders and supervisors. We will offer training and assist in them finding employment with MFI members. We will look to have our members in key locations like Hyderabad, Guntur, Vizag, Vijayawada, Chittoor and other places in Telugu States. There is no awareness on GST. There is no GST involved for movement of goods by individuals but it is taxed 18 per cent for the corporate. We will work on spreading this.

Need for an industry body

MFI represents owner-managed moving companies from India. The effort is to draw up and maintain industry standards and foster innovation to improve customer experience. The industry, which is largely unorganised, has earlier seen some fraud activities wherein a few persons took the booking but vanished overnight. In some cases, trucks were not traceable. Based on such experiences, we decided to set up a federation that will promote good practices in the trade.
